Midori (Japanese for green) is a stately sailing 68-footer Sunreef Supreme 68 model that has brought a big breath of fresh air in the boating world. The launch of the first yacht within the range, was the first time the industry has seen a sailing catamaran of 21 meters in length with a total living space equaling 300 sqm.

The kind of comfort one would normally expect to find on a superyacht. With immense social areas and a zen spirit, the Owner's inspiration for building this catamaran with Sunreef Yachts was to create a harmoniously conceived yacht reflecting the tranquility and moderation of the Japanese aesthetics and philosophy.

Midori's original style combines well with the Sunreef Supreme's innovative design featuring a superstructure made to maximize onboard space with a vast saloon opening onto the cockpit. A luxurious floating apartment, this Sunreef Supreme 68 opens new horizons for living at sea. The yacht owes her soothing atmosphere largely to Bram Van Scharen who was appointed by the Owner as interior designer and worked with Sunreef Yachts' in-house design team to develop Midori's signature décor. An adviser for high-end housing and private residential projects also involved in superyacht interior design work, he came up with a timeless and discrete style to give Midori a unique touch. One that is immune to trends and is not going to age any time soon.

Midori's vast saloon surrounded with full-height windows spans over 65m<sup>2</sup> of smartly used living surface. Its bow section features a large galley stretching over the room's entire width. The space under the centrally placed countertop conceals fridges, freezers, a wine cooler and a Hoshizaki cube ice maker. Ample storage spaces and kitchen appliances are discretely covered with black matte panels found over the entire bow area of the main room. The central countertop neighbours a large dining table with seating for eight. A customized Devialet loudspeaker is at hand to set the mood.
